

Fort Myers, Florida (May 31, 2012) - Millicorp announced the release of MilliTalk 2.5 which is available immediately in the Apple App Store. The release of MilliTalk 2.5 introduces newly enhanced features; including a native interface which was specifically designed for iPad users to offer a superior experience and optimal use of the larger screen area.

MilliTalk has changed the way the world talks and has now changed how the world sees the iPad. One of the sexiest features of 2.5 is the detail built into the design to enhance the use with the iPad bringing about a full rich experience whether the purpose is for business or personal service. For example, the user will immediately notice how MilliTalk was designed with the larger device in mind which naturally supports the full size of the iPad screen rather than apps that were designed for the iPhone.

For the iPad and iPod Touch the most important feature of MilliTalk is the extending the functionality of Apples non phone devices that enables calling by essentially turning them into phones. Regardless if it's an iPhone, iPod Touch or iPad, MilliTalk's calling features enable calling even in the most remote or poor cellular reception areas using Wi-Fi, this supports calling in areas where otherwise there would be no service. The app broadens the ability to talk on any of the Apple devices and works well with Wi-Fi, 3G and LTE networks. These features can benefit anyone from the world traveler and independent business to those who are interested in basic domestic calling.

Professional groups have realized to stay relevant in today's market a global presence is necessary, but often the cost is overwhelming. MilliTalk has made it possible for companies today to have a global presence by offering a cost effective solution. For instance, the app has allowed businesses the option to create a separate number in a different location whether it's another city or country thereby increasing worldwide awareness. To extend the professional presence even further many companies are also utilizing the visual voicemail and customized greeting features.

MilliTalk has made international calling convenient but also very affordable to previously expensive destinations and the public has taken notice. MilliTalk's international footprint has profoundly grown and the trend shows no sign of slowing down. For example calls to such locations as India, the United Kingdom, Singapore and Mexico are increasing daily at a monumental rate. Many international calls can be made for as little as .2¢ per minute, additional information on international calling rates is available at: <http://www.millitalk.com/rates>.

Timothy Meade, CEO and President of Millicorp the parent company of MilliTalk said "We continue to re-imagine phone apps for iPads, iPhones and iPod Touches and we will pursue ways to revolutionize the industry" He went on to say "The evolution in telecommunications technology is exciting and we are inspired to introduce new ways of looking at and using apps".
